Israel: A Hole in the Fog

It is hardly news when the director general of the Israeli foreign ministry says that he opposes creating a Palestinian state on the occupied West Bank. It was news when he said, as he did in Washington last week, that "everyone knows" the Palestinian Liberation Organization is viewed by Palestinians as their "national organization." And it became astonishing when he said: "There is no replacement for them. So the question is not how to replace the PLO, but how to change it."

The SEC Versus Drexel

Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., the investment banking firm, has played a leading part in the transformation of the American financial markets over the last decade. Now the Securities and Exchange Commission alleges that Drexel's spectacular success was assisted by highly illegal trading practices. Drexel vehemently denies it. During the trial, the life is going to get an unparalleled view of life on the very fast track at the upper levels of the securities business.

Other Comment

Views on the U.S. Campaign

For most Japanese, the real issue in the U.S. election has nothing to do with Republicans or Democrats and everything to do with free trade. For seven and a half years there has been no surdier ally of free trade in the U.S. government than President Ronald Reagan, and, as a direct consequence, Republican candidates this year have been adamant in opposing protectionism.

second term, America is clearly more prosperous and the world closer to resolving certain major conflicts than eight years earlier.

One thing Mr. Bush and Mr. Dukakis have in common: they are both committed to a time-scale for change which South Africa cannot meet. Since neither, therefore, can possibly deliver the change which he is promising, Mr. Bush's renewed engagement may indeed be more dangerous than Mr. Dukakis's disengagement.

Regardless of who becomes president, the European Community will feel some pressure from Washington and must get ready for some tough disputes with the United States. After all, both the Republicans and the Democrats expect their allies to step up their own defense spending.

A victory for Mr. Bush would be in general in NATO and European interests. It promises continuity. Mr. Bush, by background and instinct, is an Atlanticist personality and politically familiar to Western leaders.

In Canadian eyes, what passes for incoherence in this election is frequently bizarre. Consider the remark by Mr. Quayle: "The man at the top of our ticket, George Bush, is a life member of the National Rifle Association, while Mr. Dukakis boasts that he is a card-carrying member of the American Civil Liberties Union."

If Mr. Bush succeeds in finding the right tone, to affirm his existence and gain a minimum of respect from those who snicker at him, in a way to prove that he is something other than a boy from a good family, misplaced in politics, then anything remains possible for the Republicans. They can easily demonstrate that, at the end of Mr. Reagan's

Mr. Dukakis's statement on moving the U.S. Embassy to Jerusalem should be filed with other promises. If it means anything it is that the Jewish vote is important to him.

OPINION

It's 1948's Dewey Redux, As Elusive Dukakis of '88

By Paul Duke

WASHINGTON—Will Michael Dukakis be the political re-creation of Thomas E. Dewey? Is he making the same mistakes that Mr. Dewey did when he lost to Harry Truman 40 years ago in the biggest election upset in U.S. history? Political experts are beginning to think so—and they may be right.

... and, He's Made No Effort to Use an Hispanic Ace

By Tom Wicker

WASHINGTON—If either U.S. presidential candidate can carry both California and Texas, with their total of 76 electoral votes, he will just about have won the election. If you subtract 76 from the national total of 538, only 462 electoral votes would remain, from which the loser of both California and Texas would have to find the 270 needed for a majority and victory. That would require him to win 58 percent of the 462 remaining electoral votes, a tall order indeed for a candidate who could carry neither California nor Texas.

The Crisis of the '90s: Hunger and High Food Prices

By Lester R. Brown

WASHINGTON—The drought that gripped the United States this summer is, with good reason, being compared to the Dust Bowl of the '30s. The report in July that the Mississippi River had fallen to its lowest level since record keeping began more than a century ago is probably the most startling single measure of how dry the agricultural heartland was. With drought also reducing Canada's crop, the North American grain harvest this year will be down by at least one-fourth.

Gorbachev, Too, Has a Farm Problem

By Marshall I. Goldman

CAMBRIDGE, Massachusetts—The Soviet Union, too, has been plagued by too much heat and too little rain this summer. The Kazakh republic, an important grain-growing area, was beset for much of June by temperatures of up to 104 degrees Fahrenheit (40 degrees centigrade). One of the first hints of trouble came from Mikhail Gorbachev at a Communist Party Central Committee meeting in July. He warned that it was unlikely that the Soviet Union's food problems would be solved this year because "many regions of the Volga, Urals, Siberia and Kazakhstan have been subjected to drought."

Next Year, Fabulous Vietnam

By Nancy Bekavac

PROVIDENCE, Rhode Island—"Rumor has it," confides the August issue of Vogue magazine "that Club Med, always in the night place before anyone else, is said to be scouting Vietnam for a future club."

Talk about "right place!" Will they plant the new Club Med at Red Beach in Danang? That's where the U.S. Marines first went ashore and where, in the late '60s and early '70s, "grunts" surfed and officers sailed catamarans made out of empty artillery casings and parachute silk sails. Or maybe they'll build the club on Monkey Mountain, where at night the Viet Cong came out and blew up whatever anyone had built or "recaptured" during the day. Perhaps Club Med will provide an overnighter to Hie to visit the scenic ruins, the crumbling stucco of the old imperial capital that hosted a famous battle. The boutiques should be fabulous: handkerchiefs, camouflage leisure suits and stylish Green Berets. As for jewelry, hard to beat rows and rows of Orders of Lenin and Marx.

And talk about sightseeing! All those mooncrater craters—the big ones from bombers, the little ones from mortars and grenades. For monumentality, how about Cam Ranh Bay, the deepwater port engineered to last for a thousand years by America's foremost technocrats? Now it hosts the Soviet Pacific fleet, which adds the romance of sailors ashore in a tropical port to all those cubic yards of cement.

Sports? Consider diving for scuttled technology. Remember all those helicopters dumped overboard in '75? Now they're fabulous Jules Verne nesting grounds for exotic fish and sea life, made more exotic by genetically active trace chemicals washed down from the defoliated forests. Come to think of it, it would be a shame for Club Med to overlook the stunning opportunities afforded by Cambodia—or is it Kampuchea? Touting Pol Pot's museums of the ruling classes in Phnom Penh or jamming off to Angkor Wat, if it's still there. What could be a more memorable, a more historical, a more evocative place for a vacation? Was it Croucho or Kari who said that great events appear first as tragedy and then as farce? Perhaps soon Vogue will herald rumors of a fitness spa in Ethiopia or a tour to take crystals to dying fur seals in Scandinavia.

Those who missed "Vietnam: The War"—who did alternative service or fled to Canada, who bribed, faked or used connections to avoid visiting Vietnam on behalf of the U.S. government—may soon be able to visit "Vietnam: The Tropical Paradise." In their comfortable middle years, they can hit Red Beach with flippers and boogie boards or tee up on Hamburger Hill. It's an air conditioned tour to their generation's history. Like the ads say: "A Club Med vacation, the antidote for civilization."

but not entirely from a big publicity "bounce" from the Republican convention. California sources that say his aggressive campaigning has helped him, too; he has even "got to the left" of Mr. Dukakis on environmental issues by appearing opposed to offshore oil drilling and by his criticism of Boston harbor pollution. Meanwhile the Dukakis campaign still is "being run out of Boston" at sacrifice of local enthusiasm, and the nominee has not yet capitalized on the "peace issue," always effective in California.

100, 75 AND 50 YEARS AGO

1888: Tibet Expedition
LONDON—Shots were recently exchanged between advanced parties of the British force and the Tibetans. The latter are reportedly to have lost one or two men. It is expected that the advance of the main body of the British will take place in a few days. Telegraph wires are being laid; a cable will be carried forward as the force advances.

1913: Air Distance Mark
PARIS—M. Georges Fourny has been flying from Stamps to Gidy and back every day since August 25, and yesterday evening he had covered the huge total of 11,435 kilometers. M. Fourny's performance constitutes a triumphant proof of the practical utility and reliability of the aeroplane under all sorts of weather conditions. It is indeed a far cry to the days when M. Blériot staggered the world by a simple flight across the Channel. Had M. Fourny flown his daily stages in a direct line starting from Paris, he would now be somewhere beyond the city of Winnipeg in Western Canada.

1938: Warning of War
LONDON—Strongly pressed by France, the British government today (Sept. 9) was considering the advisability of sending a blunt, eleven-hour demarche to Chancellor Adolf Hitler before he speaks at Nuremberg on Sept. 12, warning him that if he attempts to invade Czechoslovakia, the British would support the French and Czechs. In the last 24 hours France has reminded Britain that it was British hesitancy in 1914 which encouraged Germany to plunge the world into war. Every report reaching the Foreign Office indicates that Chancellor Hitler and Herr von Ribbentrop think the British were bluffing when they warned that a conflict [in Czechoslovakia] would almost certainly involve them.

NEW YORK — Eddie Murphy has a cuter figure than I do. I know because I stood in front of a smoky mirror in the new American Museum of the Moving Image in Queens, pressed a computer button and saw my face reflected over the jeans, T-shirt and jacket Axel Foley wears in "Beverly Hills Cop."

The Elton John Sale: A Kingdom of Kitsch

International Herald Tribune
LONDON — The four-day Elton John auction at Sotheby's, which ended Friday with sales totaling £4,838,022 (about $8,175,000) and with almost 100 percent of the merchandise sold, is a turning point in the art market and, more broadly, in the cultural attitudes of our society.

In the catalogue, by way of an introduction, "A conversation with John Culme of Sotheby's," which is an interview of the music broadcaster and writer Paul Gambaccini by Culme, further stresses the fun theme while building Elton John as "a very warm, likeable and generous person... a very thoughtful guy."

suite of furniture with its upholstery designed by Duffy in his least inspired style zoomed to £90,200. Characteristically, the handful of objects that would appeal to sophisticated collectors caused no great stir. A rare carved glass pitcher by Gallé, made more important by the recent discovery of the design registration drawing for the model dated October 1894, made £1,320, slightly under the low estimate. Its Japanese buyer beamed as the hammer went down. It was definitely on the cheap side.

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

BEYOND AMERICAN HEGEMONY

By David P. Calleo. 288 pages. $20.95. Basic Books, Inc., New York.

Reviewed by Joseph Fitchett

BOTH of these books contend that the Western alliance — both its military wing, NATO, and the overall political cohesion of trans-Atlantic solidarity — is in a crisis, possibly the most fundamental critical turning point in its 40-year history. The two authors agree that the alliance is suffering from what Josef Joffe calls "a surfeit of stability," a success that has lulled many Westerners into taking the status quo for granted and ignoring the effects of Europe's growing self-confidence, new horizons in U.S. thinking and the challenges of Gorbachev's Russia.

The books, in their compelling accounts of developments in the 1980s, are invaluable for anyone wishing to understand the current debate about what, can, or ought to, be done to shore up the collective defense of the West.

Taken together, they are invaluable in illustrating how unwieldy the current debate has become, how distant are the starting points for different arguments. The authors — a West German conservative and an American liberal, each intimately familiar with the other's continent — differ radically in their diagnoses of what is awry in the alliance's evolution and, naturally, in their prescriptions of how to set it right.

Joffe, foreign editor of the Sueddeutsche Zeitung, has been closely exposed to politicians' maneuvering. He provides a convincing account of how Social Democrats in West Germany adopted anti-nuclear policies primarily in order to outflank the opposition, not to pursue moral conviction or an East-West strategy.

Books

David Calleo, director of European studies at Johns Hopkins University, argues that the United States is long overdue for a reduction in its military commitments in Europe. U.S. efforts to dominate Western defense, he contends, have blocked domestic and international economic adjustments. While disagreeing with predictions that a militarily overextended United States will follow the British empire into economic collapse, Calleo argues that U.S. deficits, fueled by military spending and tax taxation policies, have contributed to world depression and caused alliance rifts. "A reasonable case can be made that America's endemic economic disorder is today a more serious threat to the postwar international liberal order than is any plausible Soviet military aggression," he writes.

Today, largely thanks to decades of development under a U.S. military protectorate, Europe can afford, in every sense of the word, to develop its own defenses. Calleo says. Britain and France, between them, will soon have more than 1,200 strategic nuclear warheads. European countries (and Japan), by spending more on defense and cooperating better, can field enough conventional forces.

U.S. retrenchment, he concludes, would end what he calls a dangerous illusion among both conservative and liberal U.S. foreign policy-makers, that geopolitics are essentially superpower politics.

Both writers' arguments, with their intellectual lucidity, will illuminate developments as the alliance muddles along, struggling with what someone (surely Clausewitz) called "the friction of actual history."

Tyson Denies Report That He Attempted Suicide

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Mike Tyson, the world heavyweight champion, traveled Friday with his wife, the actress Robin Givens, to the Soviet Union after saying in his first interview since his hospitalization that a report of him trying to commit suicide and beating his wife was "ridiculous."

Tyson suffered a concussion and amnesia on Sunday when the car he was driving struck a tree.

"I can't help if I got into a car accident. These things happen to people. People get into car accidents."

"I love my wife. I don't beat on my wife. I'm never going to leave my wife. My wife's never going to leave me. So whatever somebody's trying to do, it's over going to work. It's just a waste of time. I don't talk out because when you talk out you just draw it out even more. So it's better to just let it go by."

Gold Rush in Indonesia

PONTAIN, Indonesia — Protected from the rain by a sheet of plastic tied over the mine shaft, Mohammed Sanusi crouches by a fire as he waits for the heavy chunks of gold-bearing rock to crack in the embers.
His equipment is a hammer and a steel spike. When he has removed the split rock from the fire and broken it into smaller pieces, he will carry the load down the hill in a bucket to one of the crushers that operate 24 hours a day in this jungle mining community.

Pierre Bergé: A New Score

International Herald Tribune
PARIS — Pierre Bergé is famous — even infamous — as Svengali to Yves Saint Laurent. Last week the man who took a shy young artist and molded a global fashion empire was given a new song to sing by his close friend, Jack Lang, France's culture minister.
Bergé, 57, is to be president of the new Opéra Bastille, a modern complex washed up like a great white whale in the Place de SUZY MENKES la Bastille. After an awkward birth under successive governments, it is due to open on July 14, 1989 — 200 years after a mob stormed the Bastille prison and started the French Revolution.

As music director from 1983-86, Keene championed new operas, conducting scores by Philip Glass and Dominick Argento, among others. He is to lead the world premiere of Jay Reiss's "Rasputin" on Sept. 17.
